SCHOOL SONG

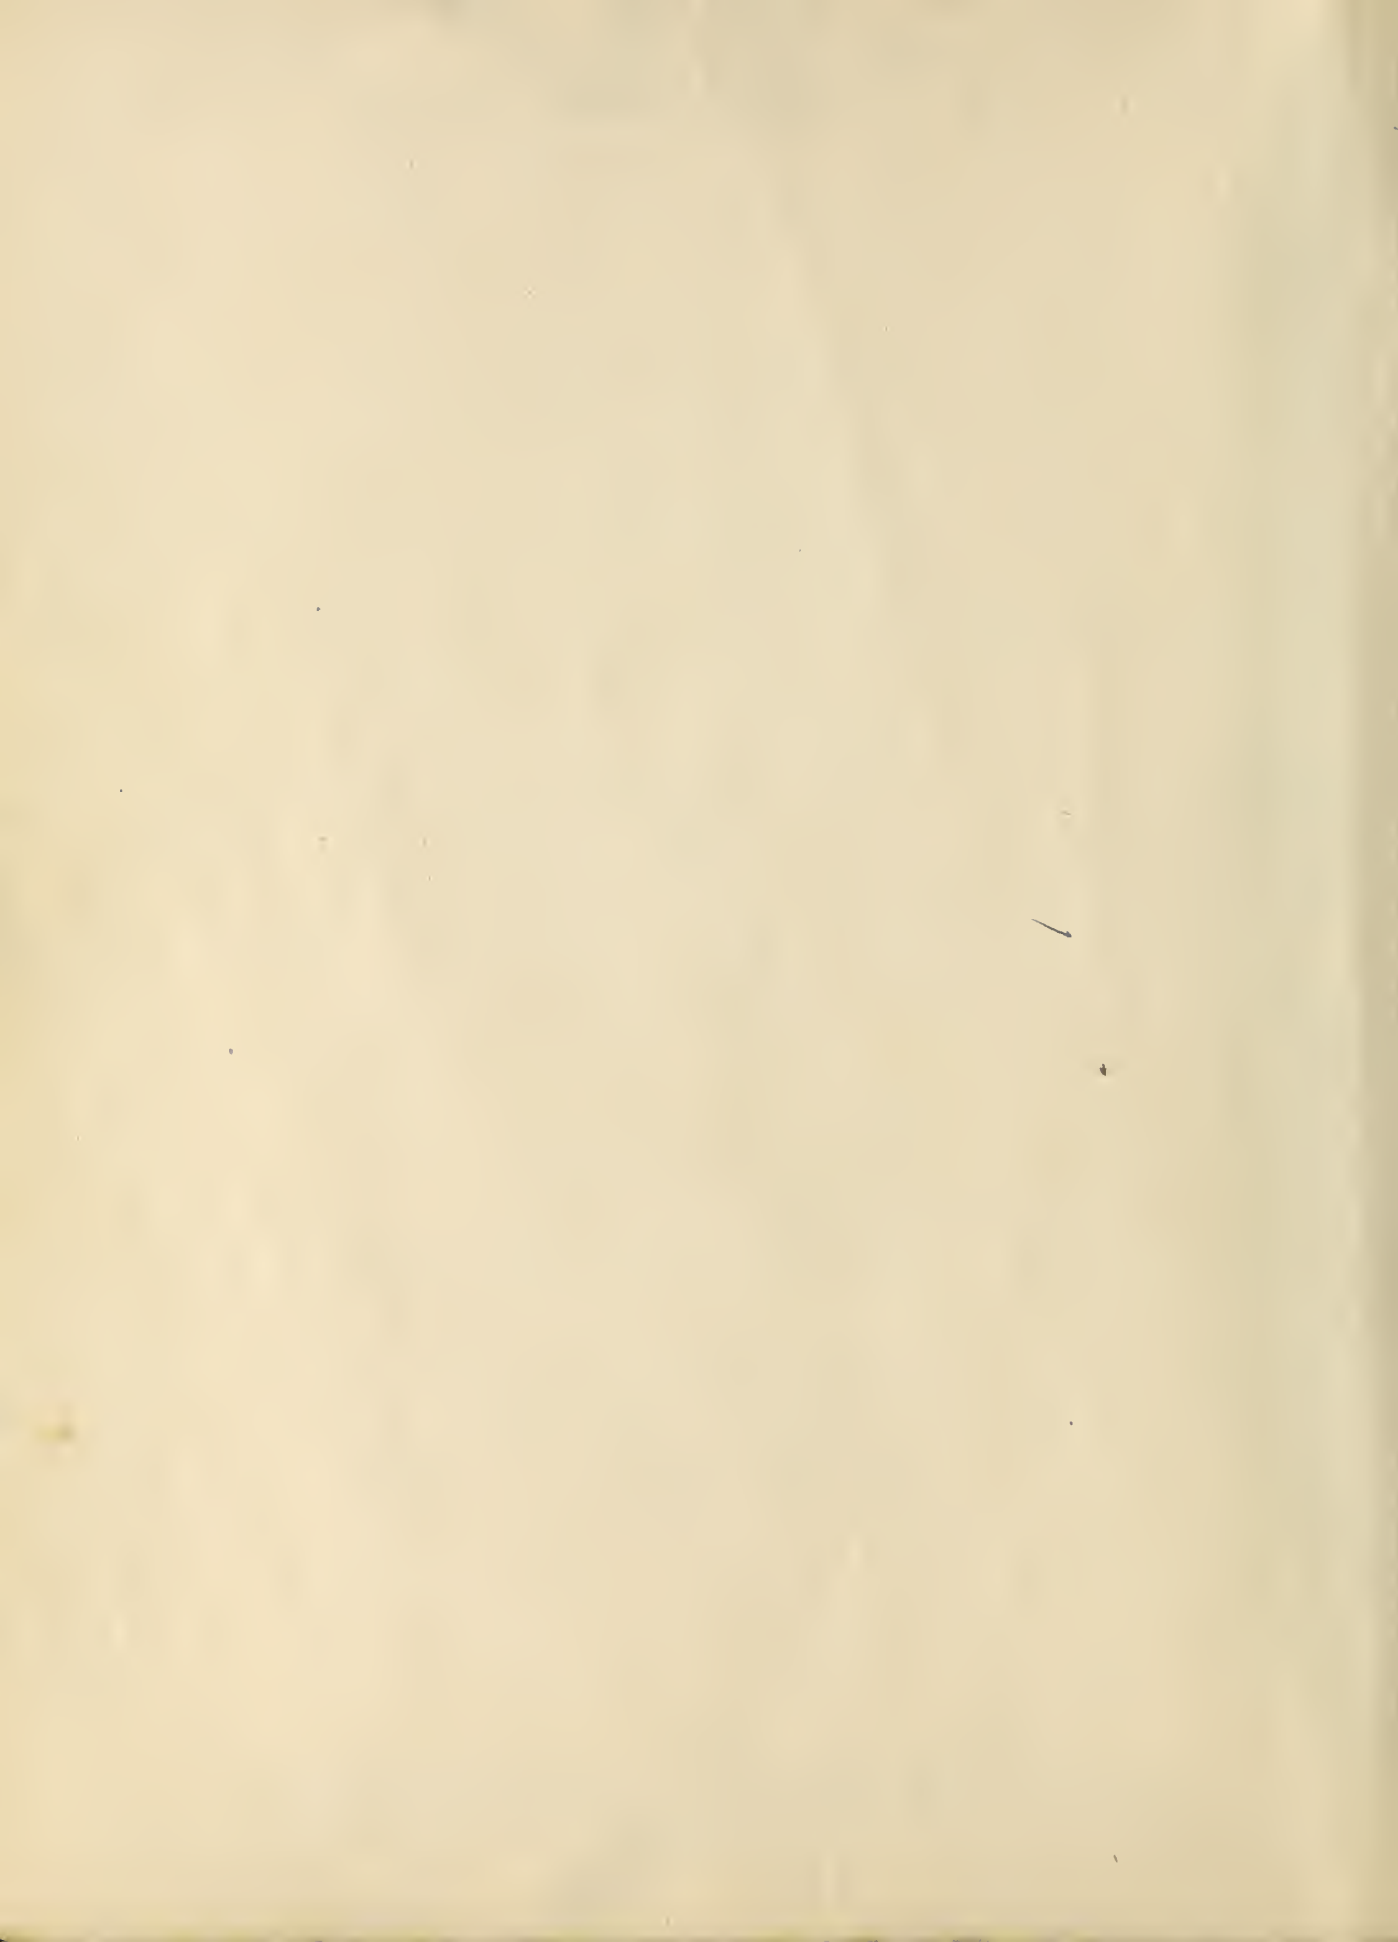

Stand up for dear old Princeton!
She's made by you.
Now, all together,
Prove you can be true!
When you shirk your duty,
She loses fame;
Make them all yell, "Bravo!"
When they hear her name.
By the lives of students
Her name is made-
Stand up for Princeton;
She needs your aid!

TELL ME WHY

Tell me why the stars do shine;
Tell me why the ivory climbs;
Tell me why the sky's so blue;
Tell me, Dear Princeton, just why I love you.

Because God made the stars to shine;
Because God made the ivory climb;
Because God made the sky so blue-
That is, Dear Princeton, just why I love you.

CLASS SONG

TOGETHER
Tune: "Together"

Together, Together,
Always together-
That's how we want to be;
Together, Together,
We stand, for we are we, mates!

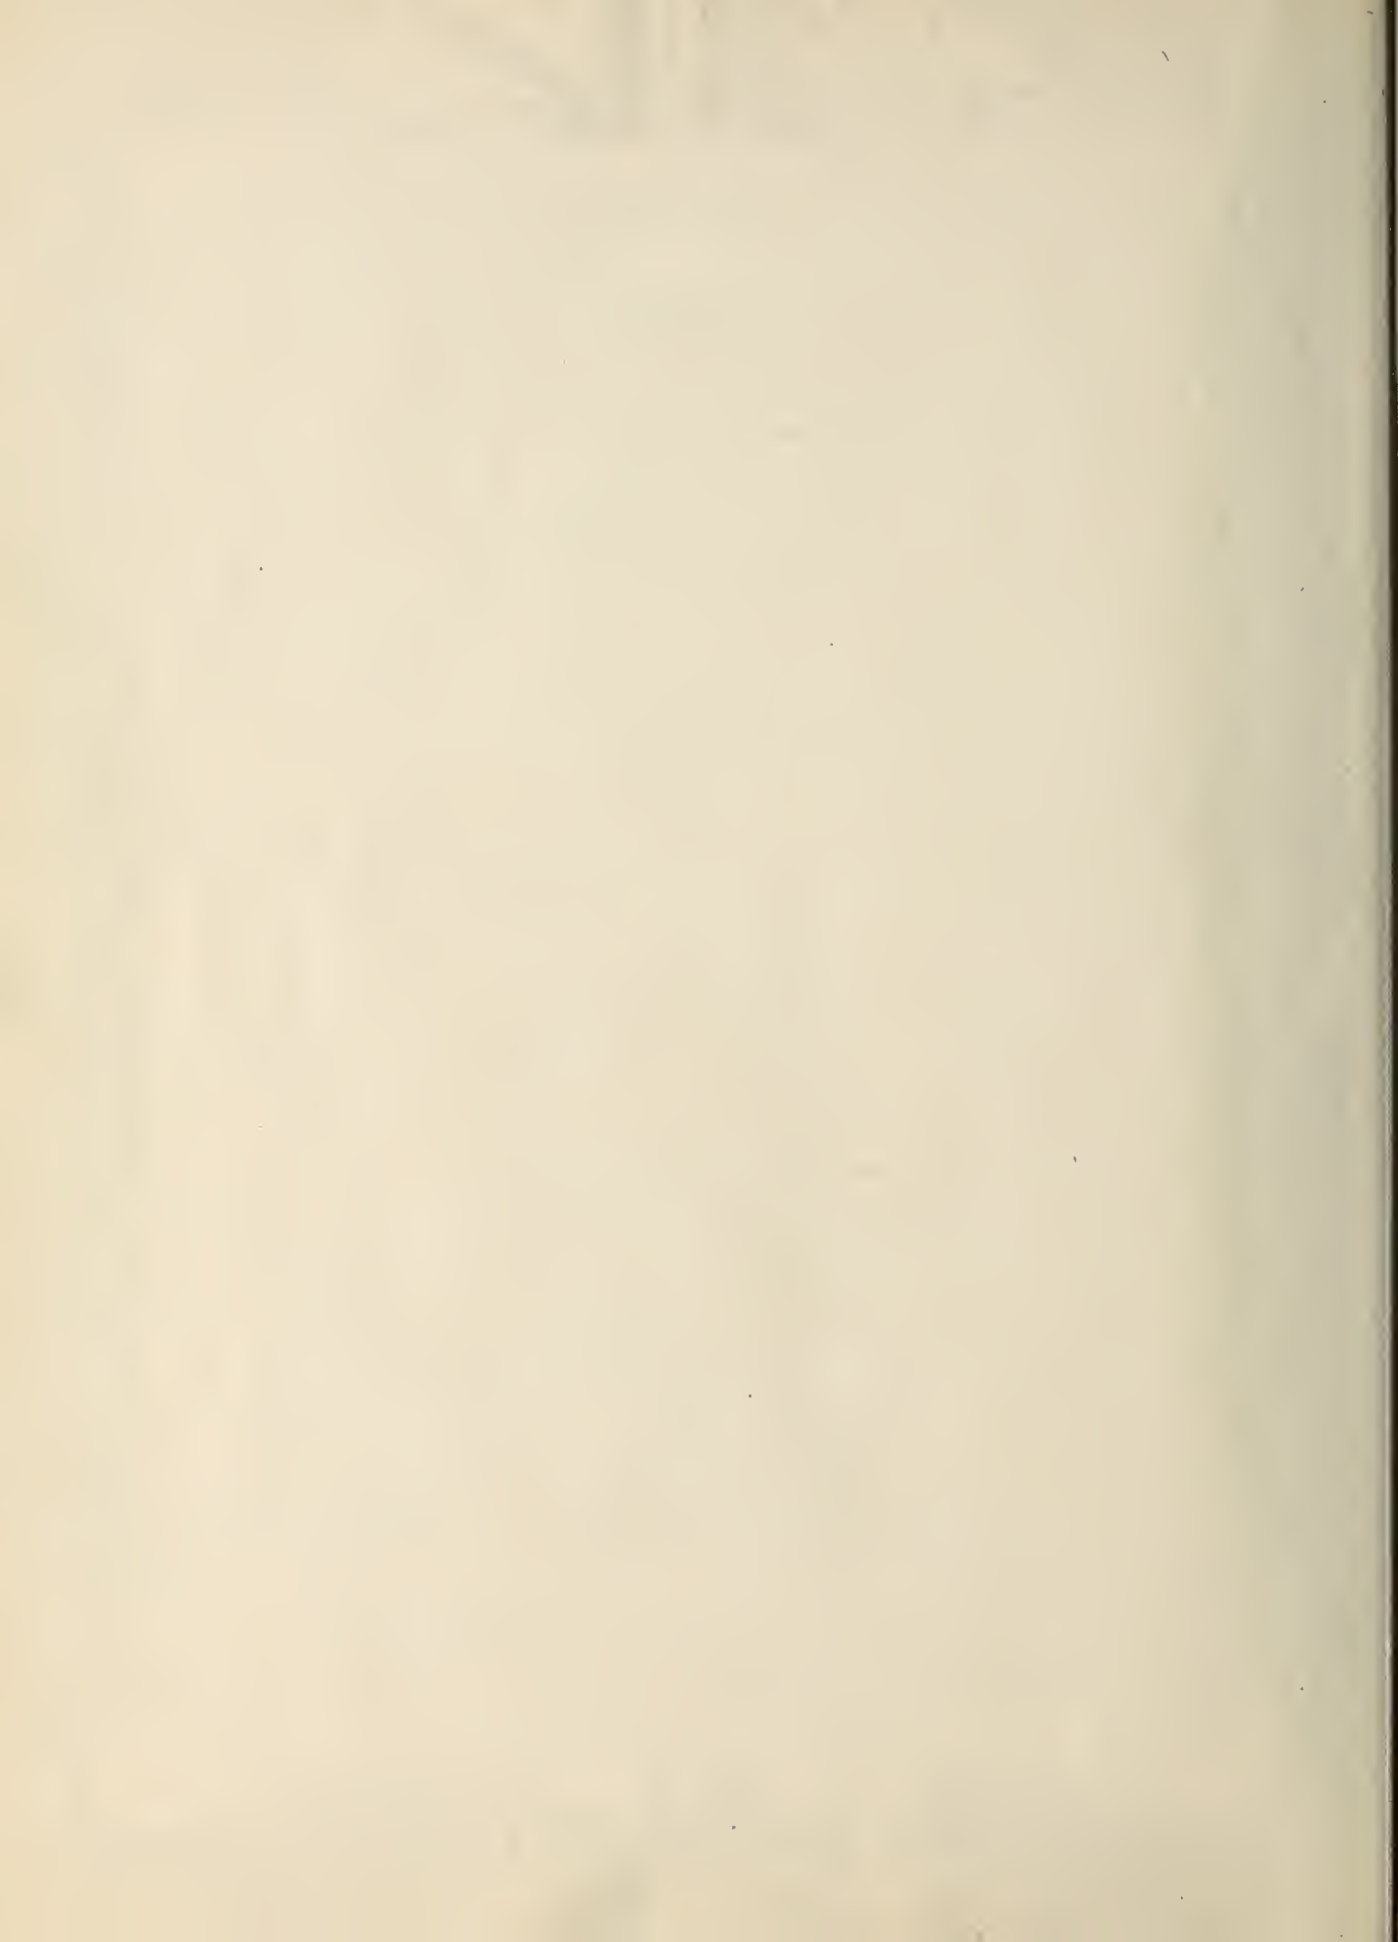

We work and play, together,
Our duties pay, together;
But the time will come
When our victory's won.
'Til then let's all be grateful;
Our teachers are so faithful;
They love us well,
But they never will tell-
For they work with us together.

We quarrel and love, together,
Seek things above, together,
Failures have been, together;
But success will come,
With our school days done.
But we, as Princeton's leaders,
Won't have the name of cheaters;
For true we've been
To our foe as our friend-
For honesty is our meter.

CLASS POEM

Days laden with darkness have vanished;
A glow of light burns a-new;
Our days of the future seem brighter-
Our work at Princeton is through.

Long ago when this task was started
A hard road ahead seemed to be;
But we strove hard with pain and vigor
To attain noble victory.

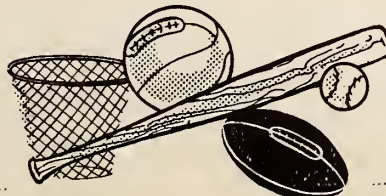

We are proud of the battle we conquered,
Proud that we fought brave and hard,
Proud of ourselves at the finish;
For we worked every foot and each yard.

As we look at the ladder behind us,
And count each step one by one,
We see twelve over which we have struggled-
To the top at last we have come.

With sadness our days here are finished,
Our future we now have in our hand;
We now go to fight with the outside
And strive to live like a man.

We thank God for giving us courage,
We thank Princeton for giving us aid;
So on with our tasks and we will struggle-
Of us true Americans must be made!

Poet Helen Wheelless

CLASS HISTORY

Twelve years ago, we took our first faltering steps in the ascension of that mountain of greater understanding.

Miss Clara Oliver, Miss Amanda Leary, and Miss Leone Woodard, the teachers who helped us make that first step upward, were our teachers that first year.

In our second year, Miss Amanda Mann, Miss Hettie Belle Cox, and Miss Marietta Peele, were our constant helpers. It was during that year that we learned more about our A B C's, learned to add and subtract, and to count to one hundred.

Mrs. Mary Wilkerson Baobe, Miss Harreitt Pearce, Miss Lenora Womack, and Mrs. Carolina F. Everett will always remember us just as we were--- shy little third-graders learning multiplication tables and stammering over reading books.

When we think of our fourth year, through our minds flash: our first year of geography, long division, and our teachers--Miss Louise Edgerton, Miss Lenora Womack, Mrs. Pauline Boyette Woodard, and Miss Ione Aycock.

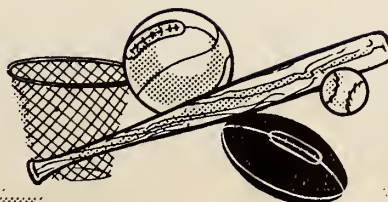

We felt that our cup of knowledge was overflowing when in the fifth grade, under the guidance of Mrs. Adalis Rutrell Williams, Mrs. Hazel Woodard Wooten, and Miss Margaret Holt, we learned all about our native state capitol, and we also took our first year of history.

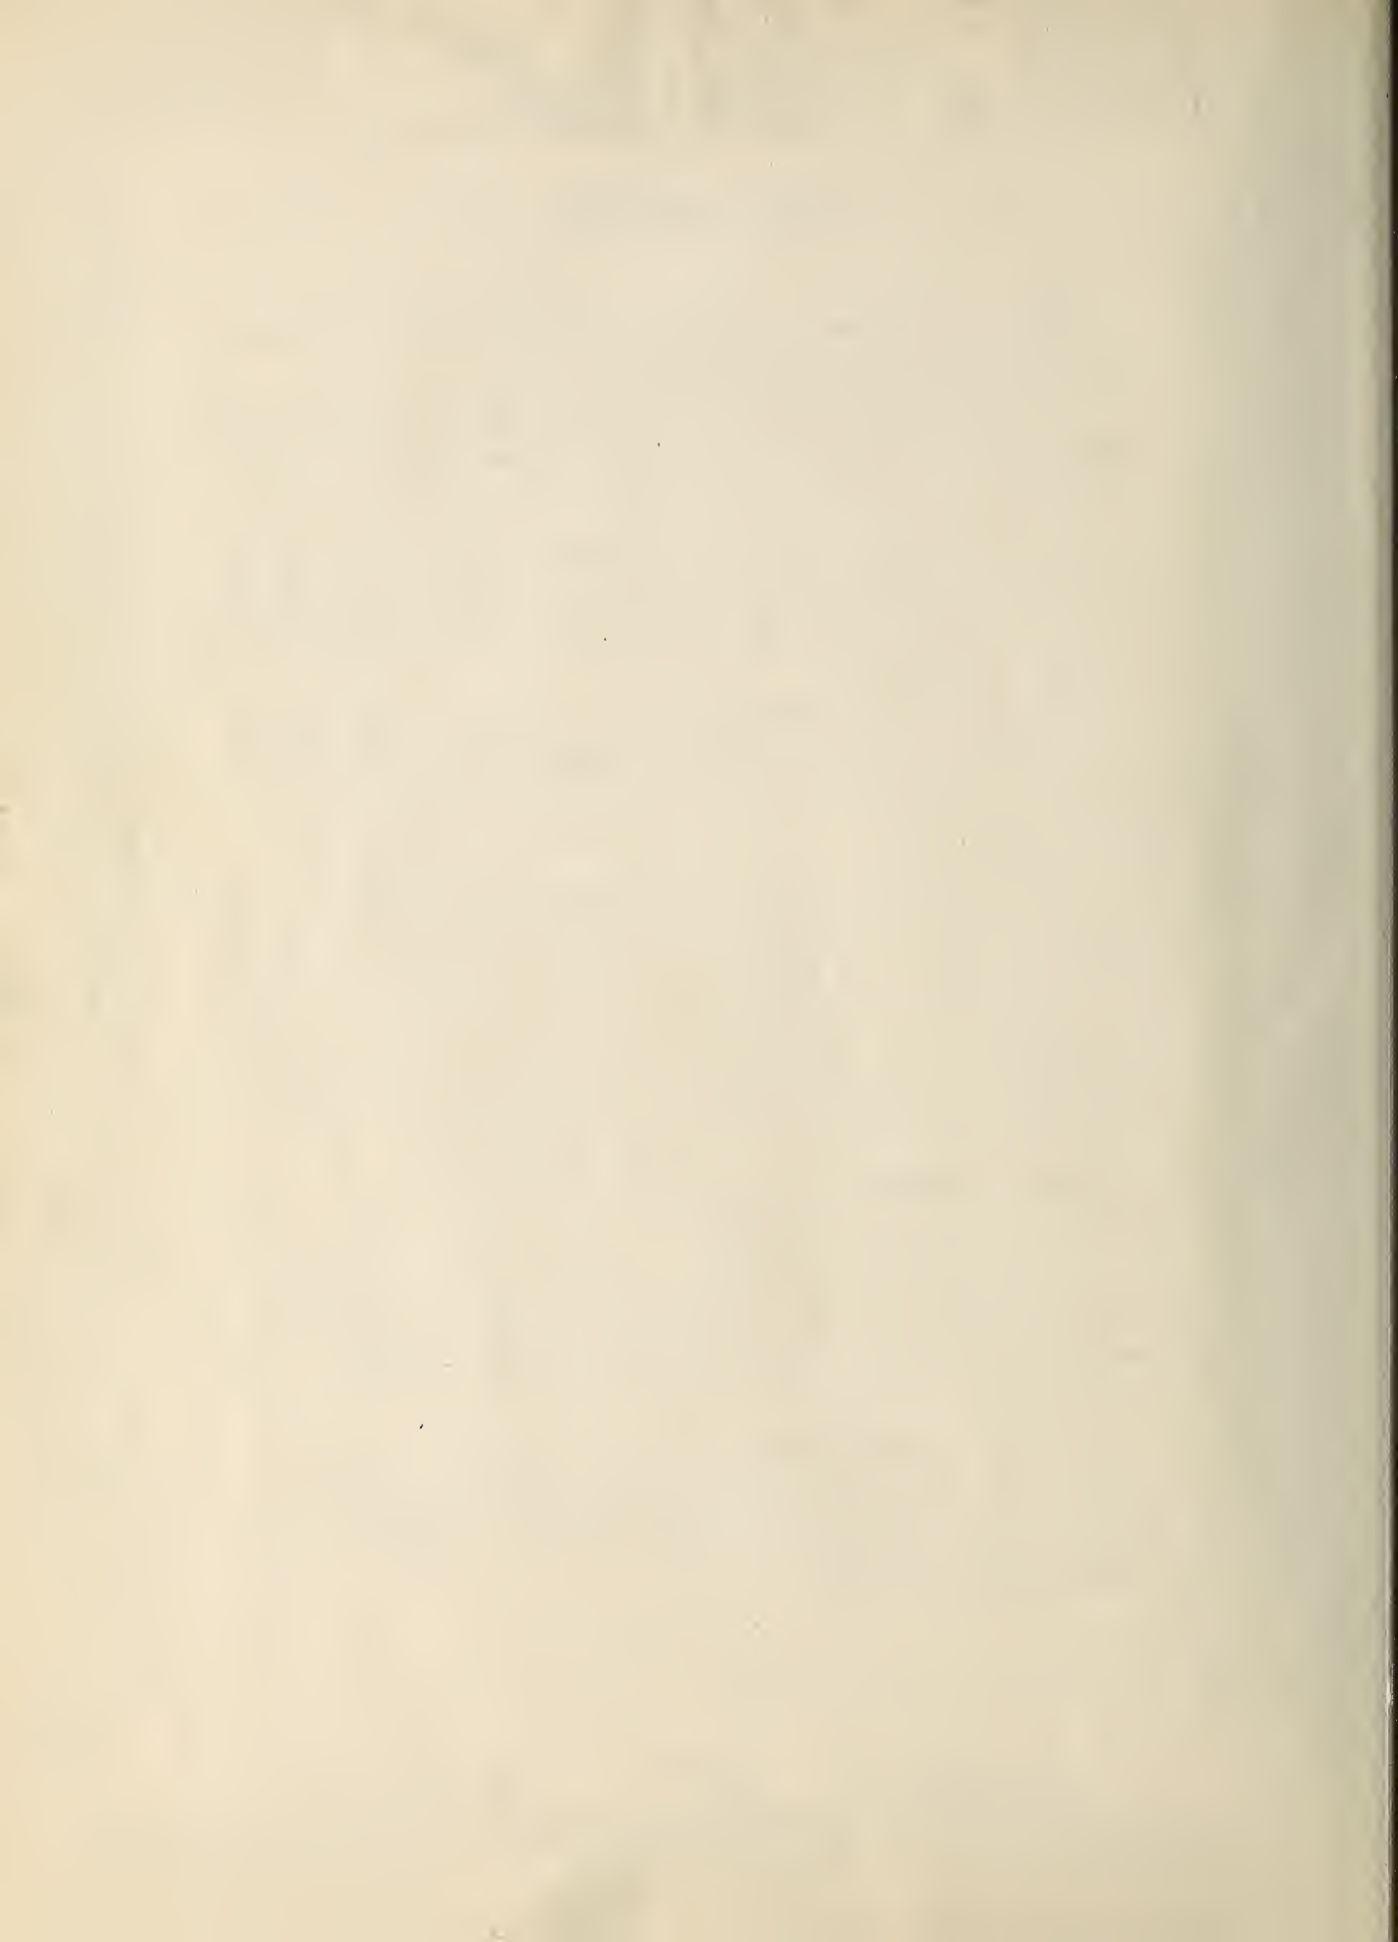

Miss Owa Bradley, Mrs. Hazel Woodard Wooten, and Mrs. Mabel B. Wood carefully guided us through the sixth.

Our red-letter year in grammar division was the seventh. We studied North Carolina history more thoroughly, again went to the capitol city, and were taught by Mrs. Wilma P. Howard, Miss Marie Thorrrington, and Mr. W.T. Boyette.

Mr. Ray Richards and Mr. William Yost were our teachers in the eighth grade. That year engraved a momentous memory upon our minds. On the first day of that year, several students from Brogden joined us Princeton eighth-graders.

gosa

Our ninth year truly found us seventy-five wide-awake freshmen ready to work. Better balanced, but still not quite established, we were heading upward, supervised in our homerooms by Mrs. Eva Flower Shearin, Mr. Randal F. Autry, and Miss Ruth Arlene Holt.

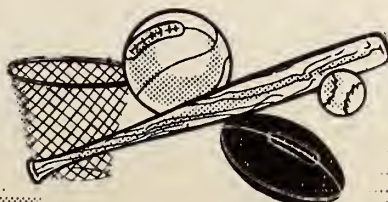

When we became sophomores, we had as our homeroom teachers Mrs. Annie R. Glover, and Mrs. Pearl Pittman Mozingo. Our main interest that year was a banquet--our very first one.

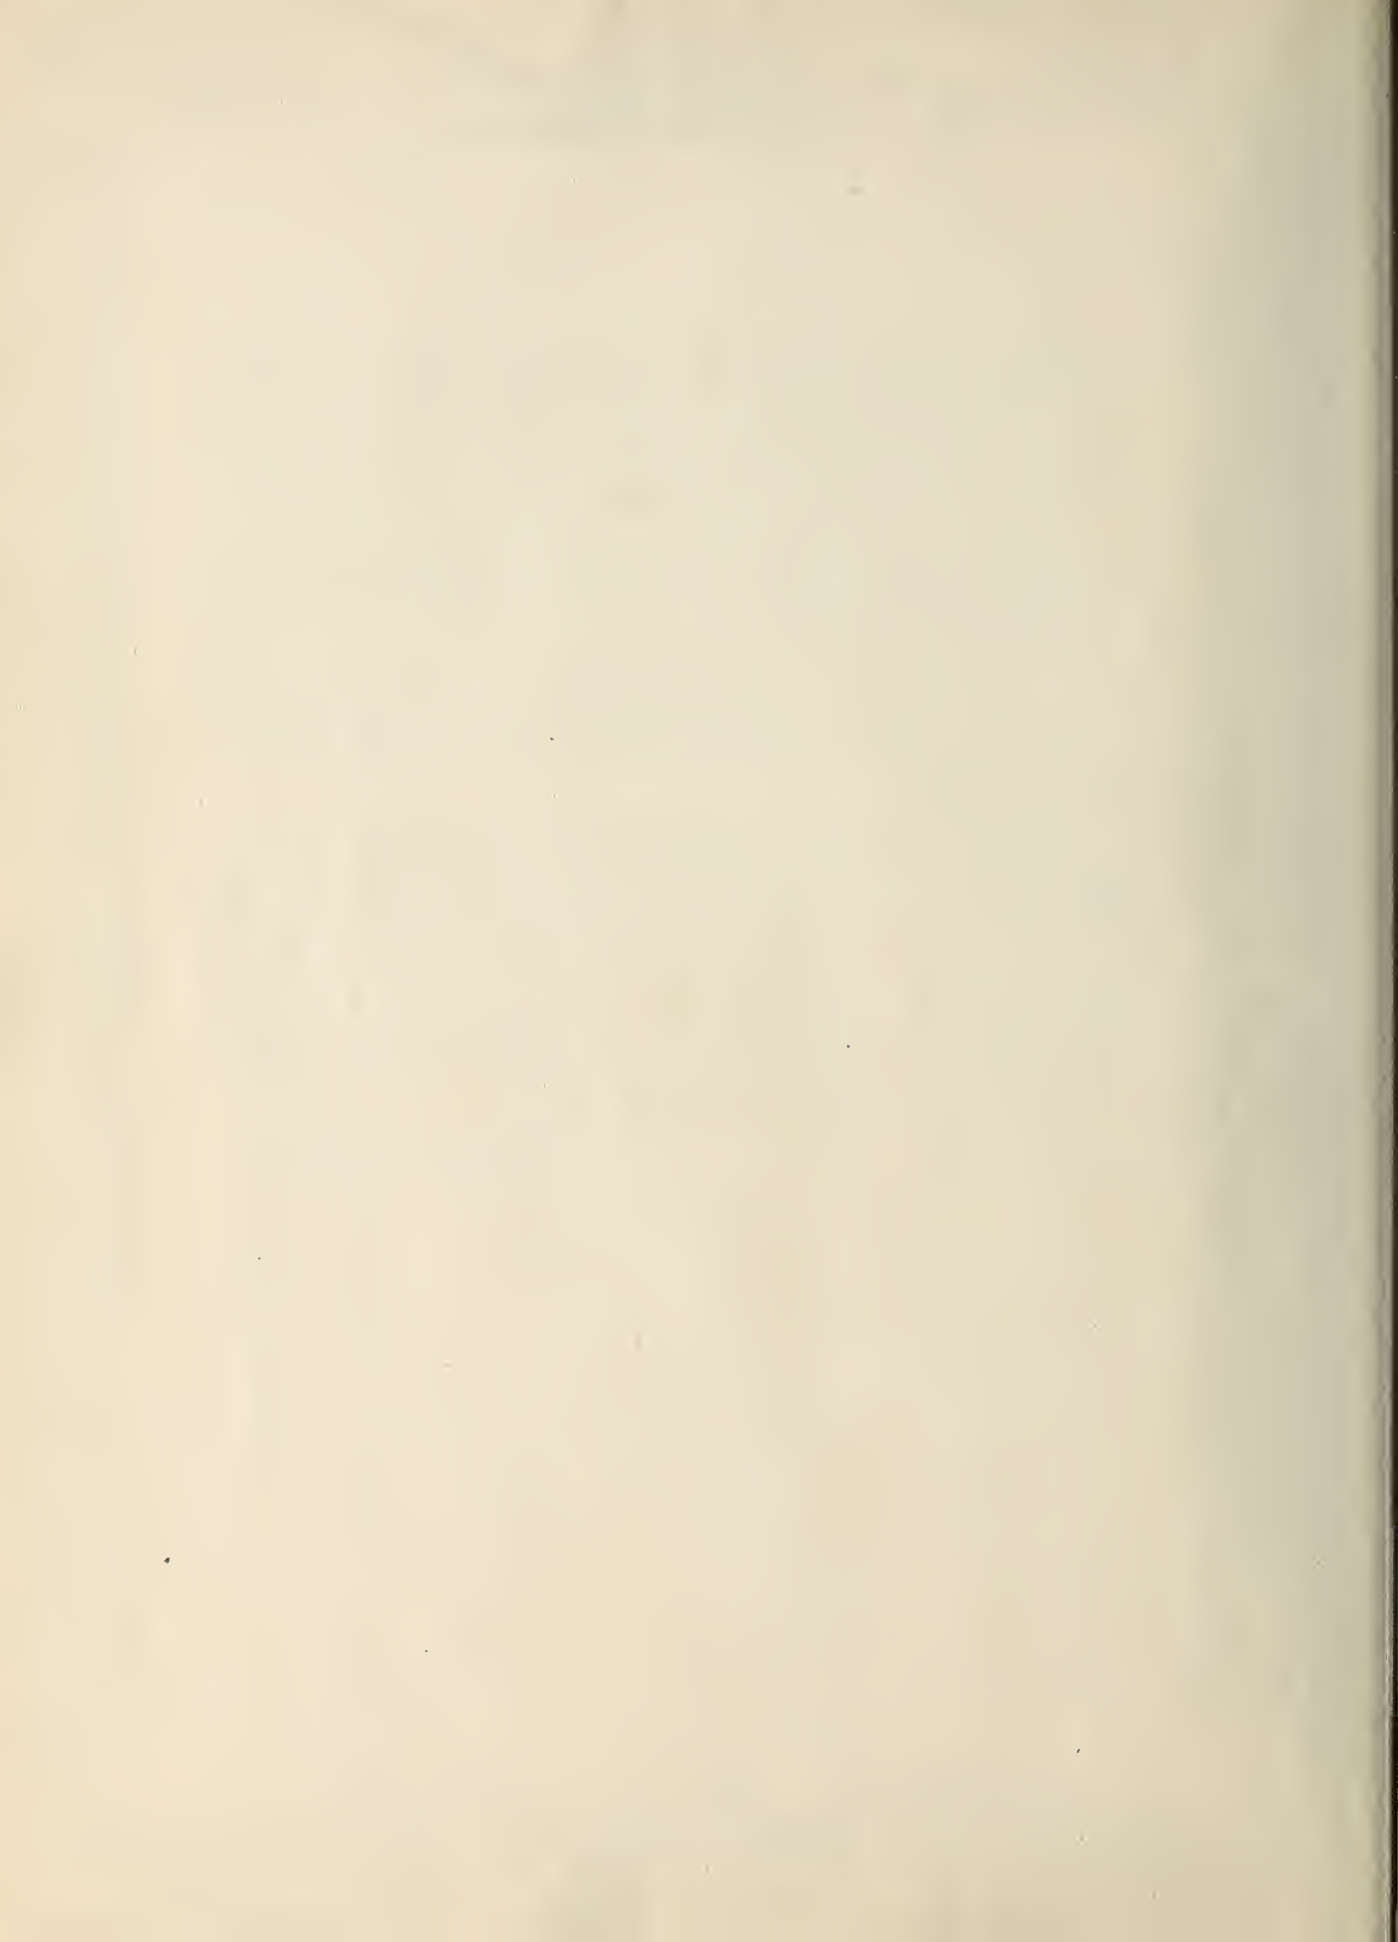

As juniors, we felt that we had conquered that which seemed at one time an insurmountable height. The high-light of that year was receiving our class rings. Mrs. Annie R. Glover and Mrs. Loleta Kehan Powell were our homeroom teachers.

Though our crew has decreased in number from seventy-five in the ninth grade to twenty-seven in the twelfth, under the leadership of Mrs. Loleta K. Powell, we twenty-seven still remain--sure, proud, and confident.

Of course, we realize that graduation is not the consummation of our zealous march upward. We are not content to rest upon this ledge that we have reached. We aspire to add a new and glorious chapter to our ever-unfolding panorama of human achievement.

Historian Maude Worley

CLASS PROPHECY

As I gaze into the crystal ball, I see a favorable future for the Princeton High School Seniors of 1946.

First, before me is Edna Martin climbing the stairway to success as a school teacher with weary wrinkles from her concern over her students who are not so ambitious as she has been. She occasionally visits her best friend, Ada Holt, also a school teacher, although her wrinkles are not so deep from her anxiety over the success of others.

A new light gleams as a young secretary steps forward--- Helen Wheelless whose patience was prolonged as she waited for a soldier to assure her of the happiness of a home in the future, she visits her favorite schoolmate, Julia Pittman, who, deciding a further education would be worthless, settled down with a sailor. Occasionally Helen sends Julia a most precious gift to prove her friendship---nylon hose.

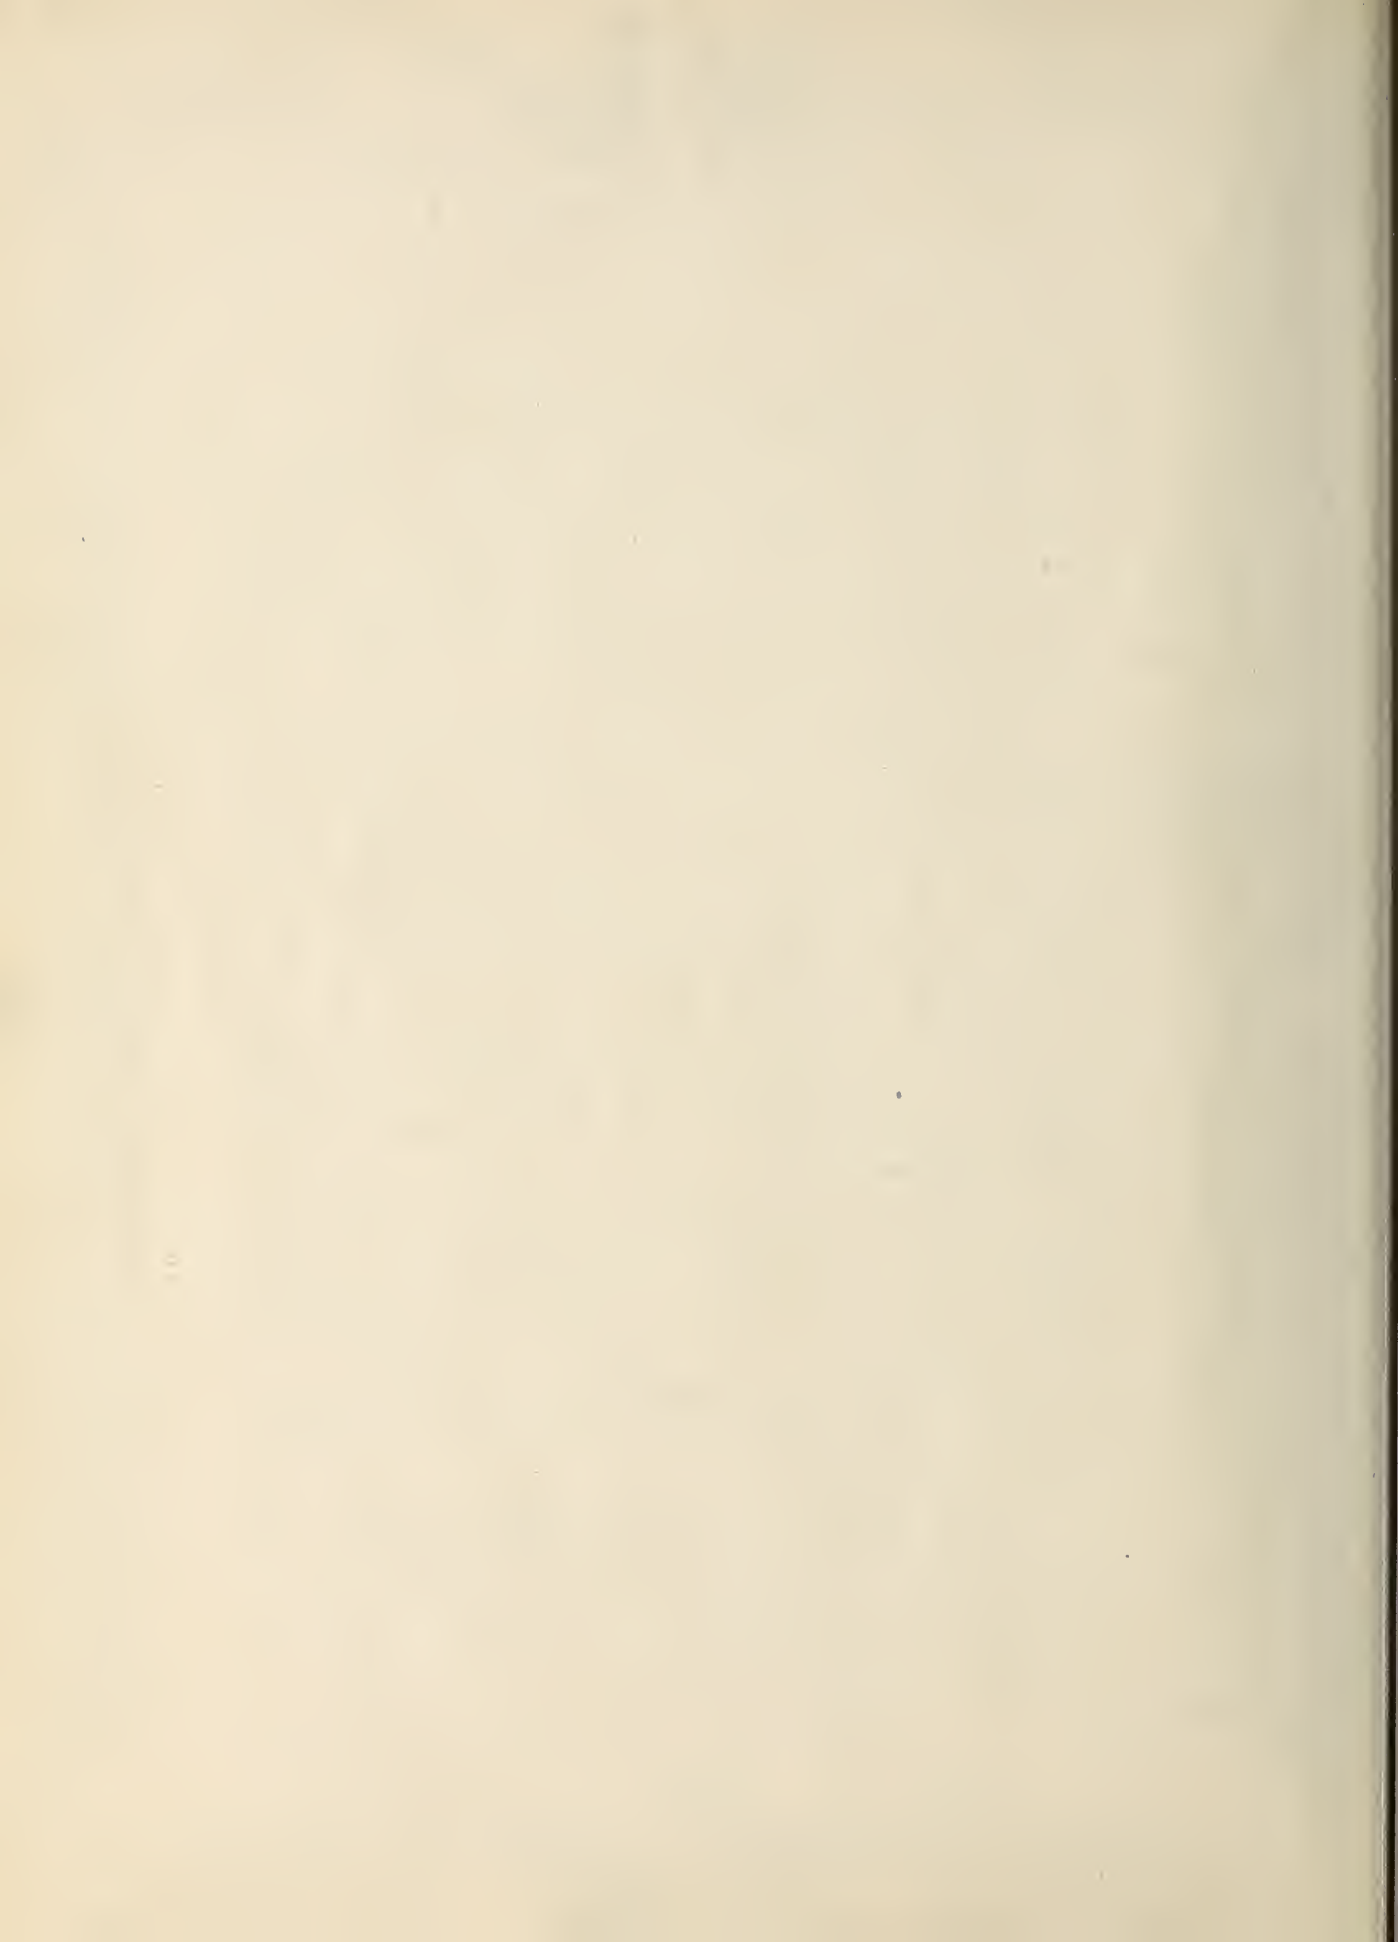

Ah! Quite a number of years have passed, for I see three grey-haired women gossiping as they rock in their favorite old chairs. Do I know them? Oh! Yes. Now I see---Bertha Capps, Essie Mae Jones, and Maude Worley.

The ball turns again, this time into one of Hollywood's largest beauty salons to find Mildred Woodall gently sweeping the hair of Arline Creech, a secretary for Van Johnson, into a high pompadour.

What is this? Oh yes! Verlia Grey Stephenson is watching her factory textile workers to see that each design is placed correctly in the material.

Ten years elapse--now Jimmy has returned and he and Betty Pate have begun an uproarious family of five boys, of course with a helping hand from one of her best friends who has decided to remain a maid, Mary Ruth Snipes.

Here is an airplane zooming by on which Ruth King is a hostess. And to whom is she speaking? I see now. It is her best friend, Edna Grace Edwards, on her way to England for a rest after a number of years of strenuous office work. Ah! I recognize the pilot, Tommie Massey-- he always loved the higher things in life.

Before me is rising an old grey mare; behind her stalks Bob Williams, whose ambition has always been to be a cultured farmer.

In another section of the country I see two neighboring farms on which live the families of W. L. Godwin and Everett Hatcher. They seem to spend a great deal of their time leaning on the dividing fence talking about everything in general.

Time marches on to find Lola Mae Peedin standing over a pupil demanding that he play his piano selection once more and this time, no mistakes!

Teaching has become a profession for another, Helen Davis. How gently the words seem to flow from her mouth as she tells her students the importance of the study of English.

In the city of Raleigh I see two working girls in a beauty parlor, Marie Edwards and Lora Thompson.

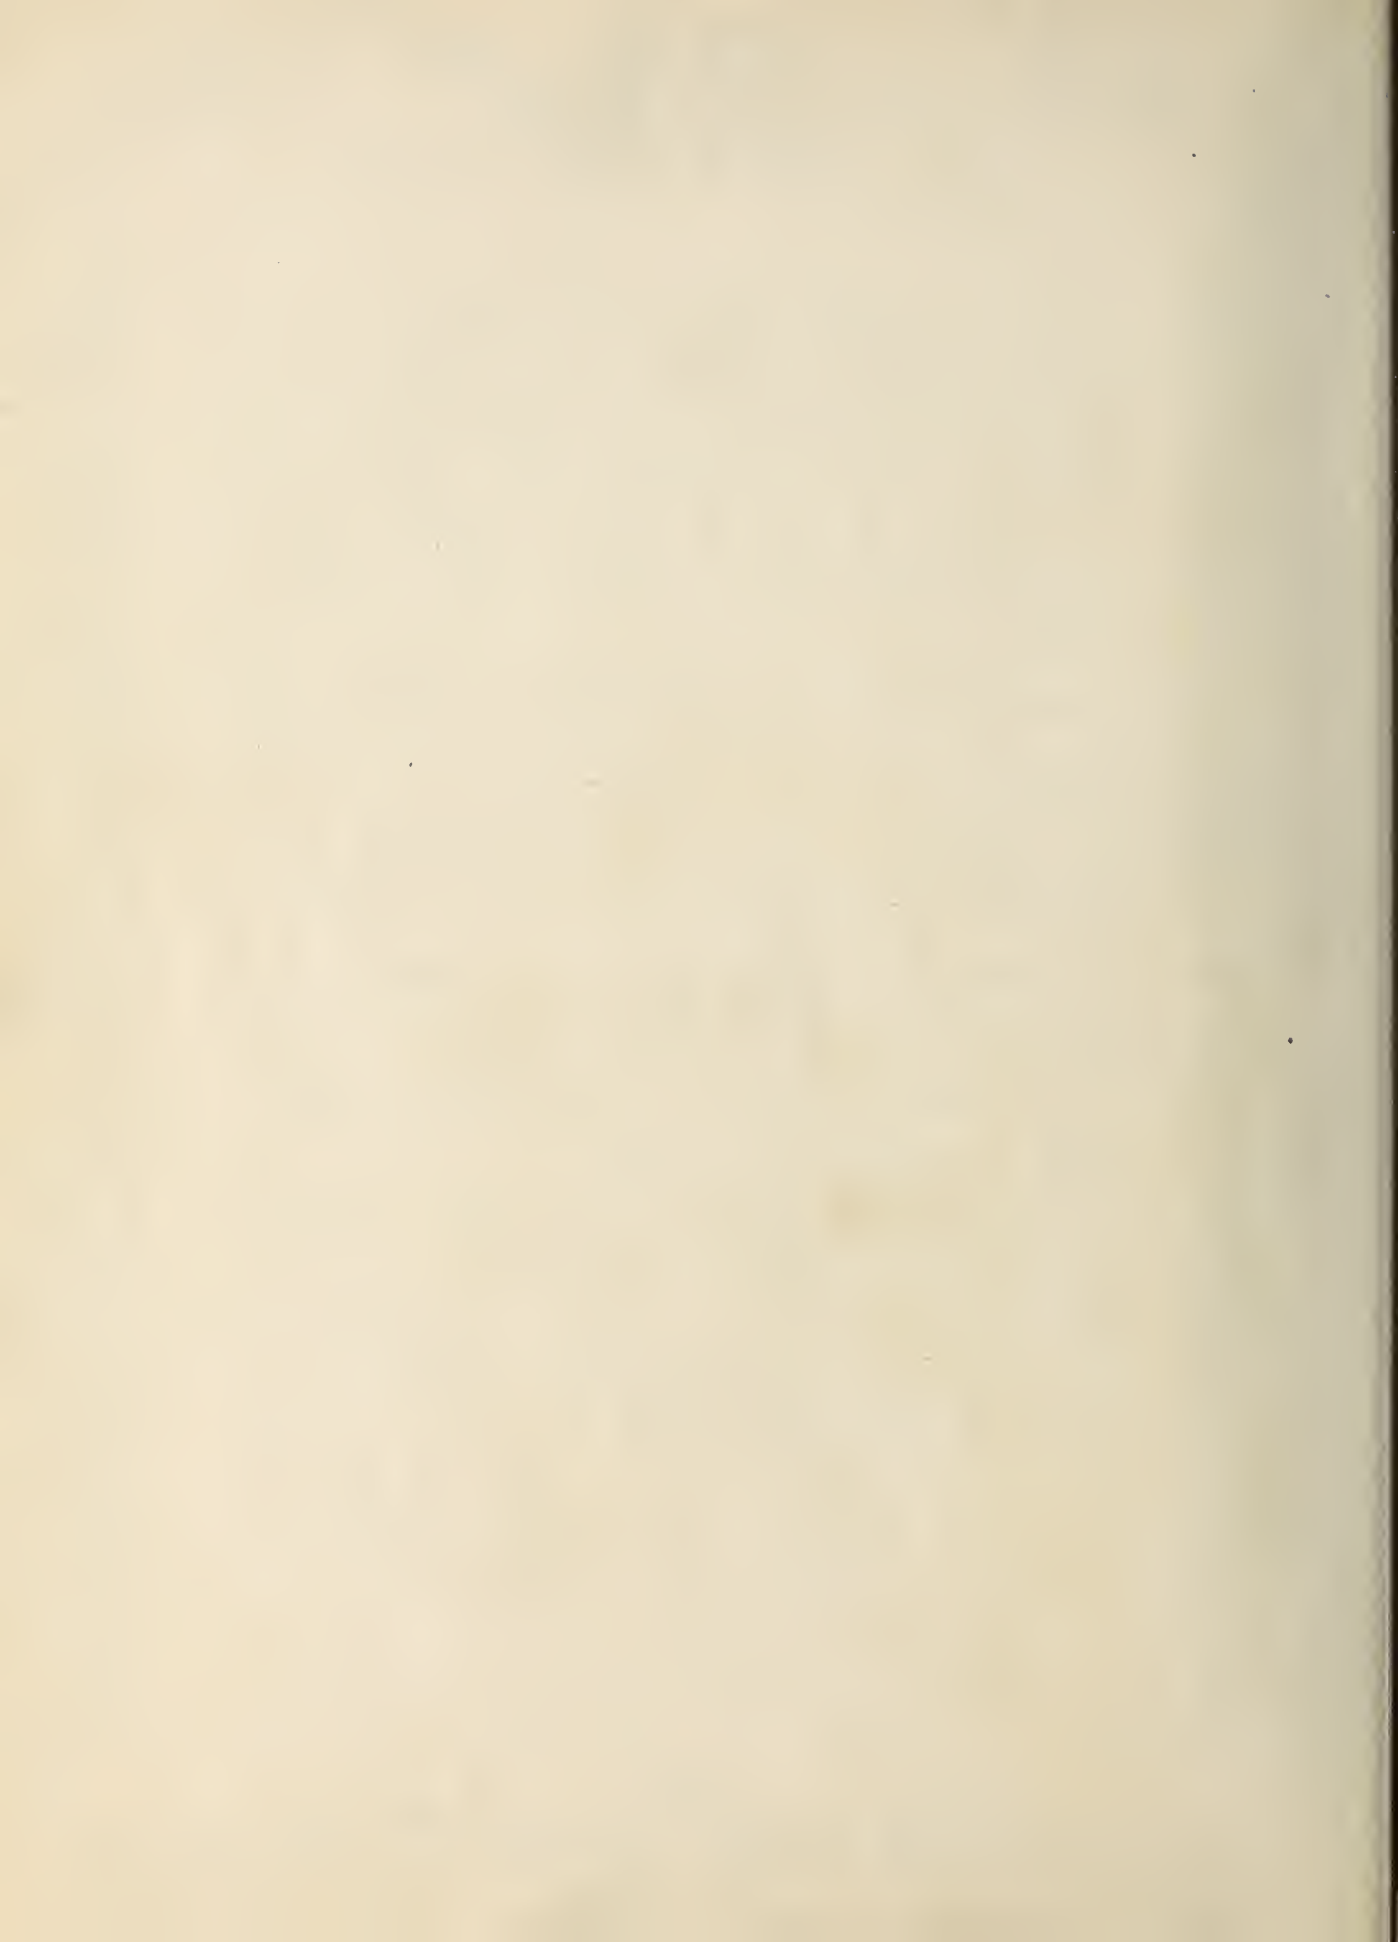

Neighbors? Oh! but of course; they have always been such true friends---Rachel Gurley and Mary Evelyn Rains.

In his seventh heaven, Cecil Johnson I see, removing the appendix of a patient.

And this? Yes, Ruth Wiggs, whose highest ambition was to be either a housewife or a French teacher!

Prophet Ruth Wiggs

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

We, the class of 1945-46, having completed our numerous tasks here and being in sound body and mind, state our last will and testament :

Our faculty

Item I. To our principal and teacher, Mr. Woodard, goes our greatest love and a hope that his "B.A." students of the future will know how to add, subtract, multiply, and divide.

Item II. To Mrs. Powell, our most understanding and best-loved teacher, we leave the hope that one year she will have a group of English students who can interpret Shakespeare and Carlyle with one reading; a white, ivy-hidden country cottage; and the family that can be seen waiting for her in the crystal ball.

Item III. To Mrs. Glover some natural-born French speakers.

Item IV. To Mr. Harrell an all-star boys' basketball team and the county loving cup for 1947.

Item V. To Mrs. Hollowell the bliss furnished by a group of scientific-minded students to keep her happy.

Item VI. To Mrs. Mozingo a five-room bungalow ideally located for a life-time habitation by her and her husband--and small family.

The Students

Item I. To Doris Eason Helen Davis' poise.

Item II. To Nevell Howell W.L. Godwin's intelligence.

Item III. To Joyce Braswell Ruth King's coyness.

Item IV. To Clara Daughtry Ruth Wiggs' vocal ability.

Item V. To Norwood Worley Cecil Johnson's frankness.

Item VI. To Nancy Sugg Rachel Gurley's military achievement.

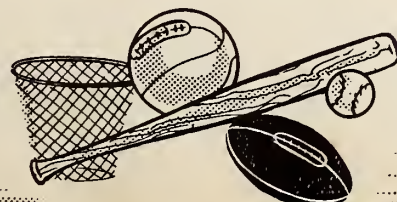

Item VII. To Joyce Parker Hazel Braswell's athletic ability.

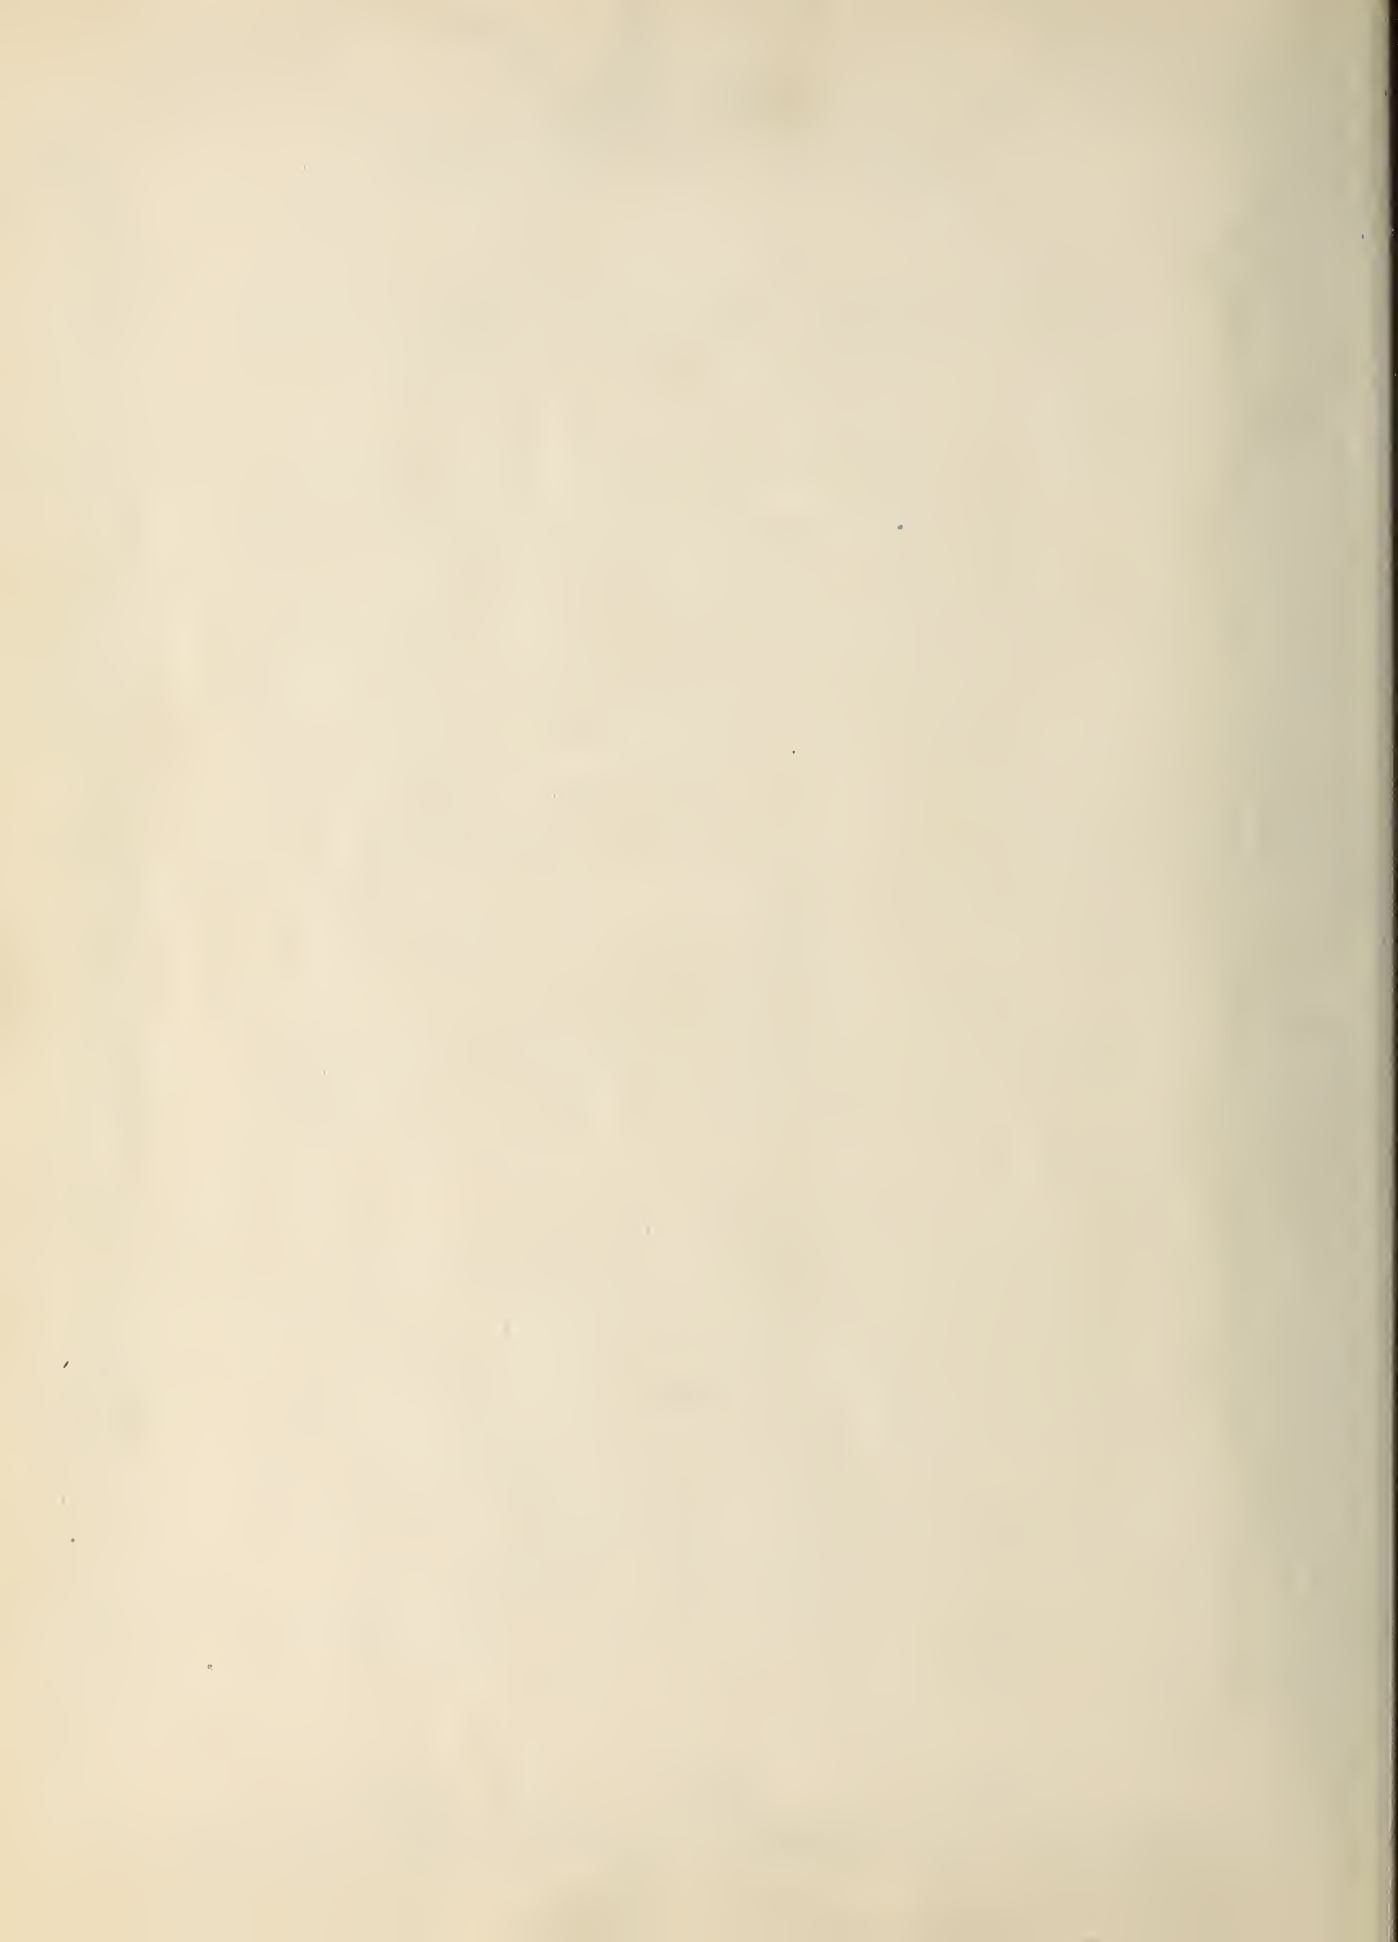

Item VIII. To Myra Gray Lee Julia Pittman's charm.

Item IX. To Ralph Gurley Tommie Massey's popularity.

Item X. To Margaret Massey Ruth Wiggs' legs.

Bob

- Item XI. To Tommie Creech Everett Hatcher's naiveness.
Item XII. To Jessie Rains Mary Ruth Snipes' height.
Item XIII. To Joyce Edgerton Betty Pate's talkativeness.
Item XIV. To Leon Moore Bob William's coquetry.
Item XV. To Jean Creech Helen Wheelless' cuteness.
Item XVI. To Norvelle Wiggs Lora Thompson's studiousness.
Item XVII. To Mary Ann Gurley Arline Creech's smile.
Item XVIII. To Jessie Ellen Jones Mildred Woodall's hair.
Item XIX. To Inez Batten Edna Martin's sense of humor.
Item XX. To Marie Martin Verlia Gray Stephenson's neatness.
Item XXI. To Jane Wallace Lola Mae Peedin's grace.
Item XXII. To Dorothy Talton Edna Grace Edwards' athletic ability.
Item XXIII. To Bessie Holt Maude Worley's common sense.
Item XXIV. To Marguerite Thompson Ada Holt's walk.
